To All Participants, Coaches, and Judges:

I have had many roles at the NDT, but this year's is one of the more pleasurable. It is an honor to welcome you on behalf of the American Forensic Association. While an important AFA's role is the promotion of professional interests in forensics, the heart of our mission remains sponsoring the NDT and NIET. Our national tournaments remain an elegant reminder of forensics' value.

Your participation in this venerable tournament stands as a concrete reminder of your accomplishments this year. Not only have you enjoyed competitive success, you have extended your education in ways few are privileged to experience. Let the 1997 NDT serve as the capstone for the '96-'97 season.

In addition to the competitor's commitment and vitality, a significant portion of the learning process rests with the coaches. Their unselfish efforts are matched by few. I realize more every year what a privilege it is to be in the company of such coaches and competitors.

I know you will join me in thanking Professor Lee Polk, Professor Arnie Madsen, the members of the NDT Committee, members of the NDT Board of Trustees, and Don Parson and his staff. These and others work very not only to make the national tournament a success, they also devote endless hours throughout the season to make the NDT a quality organization.

I would also like to thank Liberty University for its gracious hospitality, especially Dr. Falwell, Chancellor, and President Dr. Guillermin, President. Additionally, knowing the prodigious organizational abilities of Brett O'Donnell, there are hundreds of others at Liberty University and in the Lynchburg community who have worked hard to make this year's tournament spectacular.

As importantly I would like to thank Dr. Brett O'Donnell and his outstanding staff, for their unerring graciousness and for having the community spirit required to orchestrate such an enormous undertaking. We are all indebted.

Sincerely,

Allan D. Louden

The National Debate Tournament

THE YEARS AT WEST POINT

In 1947, it was unusual to find debate teams crossing the country or meeting a rival team more than once or twice. Most debate tournaments were local or regional in nature. There was no place where top teams from across the country could compete. The Westpoint National Intercollegiate Tournament was organized and conducted by the United States Military Academy to provide such an experience--where top teams from across the nation could meet. The tournament rules were determined by West Point Administration in consultation with such debate coaches as A. Craig Baird of the University of Iowa, G.M. Musgrave of Des Moines, Alan Nichols of USC, E.R. Nichols of the University of Redlands, and Joseph O'Brien of Pennsylvania State University.

Seven regions were set up to identify top teams, and select 29 colleges to participate in five seeding rounds and four elims over a three day period. Some of the features of the tournament stipulated that no school would meet a school within 500 miles of itself during the seeding rounds and that no coach would judge a school from his or her own district. Several traditions started at West Point remain in practice today: the "big board," oral announcement of pairings, and team signs in the rooms.

West Point administered the tournament for the first twenty years of its history. Initially there were no fees; housing and meals were provided by the Academy. For the first few years coaches stayed in the homes of Academy officers. All entertainment facilities on the base were free, except for the Post Theatre, which charged 15¢ a movie (Debaters Magazine, 1947). During these years the tournament was expanded from 29 to 38 teams. After a series of tab room errors, a Committee of coaches was set up to "review" the results of the prelims before elim rounds began (Parson, "The NDT at Fifty").

THE AMERICAN FORENSIC ASSOCIATION TAKES OVER

The Early Years: 1967-1974

In 1966 West Point Commandant William Westmoreland informed George Ziegelmuller, then President of the American Forensic Association, that the Academy would no longer host the tournament. The reason cited was "budget constraints," and the decision came as a complete surprise to the forensic community. Four coaches, Annabel Hagood of Alabama, Herb James of Dartmouth, William Reynolds of Georgetown and Ziegelmuller of Wayne State formed an interim transition committee, with Hagood and James focusing on the problem of finance.

The early years of the AFA sponsored tournament (1967-1975) were marked by coaches planning, setting guidelines and eligibility rules, searching for a director as well as a tournament site; they were years of change. The first chair of what became the National Debate Tournament Committee was Annabel Hagood, and the first NDT Director, Stan Rives. The initial committee assumption was that it would pick a different director for each year. Following Rives as director were Richard Rieke in 1968 at Brooklyn College, Roger Hufford in 1969 at Northern Illinois, Dave Matheny in 1970 at the University of Houston, and John Lehman in 1971 at Macalester College and again in 1972 at the University of Utah. This period was marked by the development of coaches' responsibility for all aspects of the tournament, which was renamed The National Debate Tournament. Beginning in 1970, it was possible for a school to have two of its teams qualify to the NDT; this occurred after much heated debate (and a fear that some school would "close-out" the NDT which apparently would constitute an embarrassment).

Districts were reconstituted but remained eight in number until a new district (District IX) representing the Rocky Mountain States was added, and an initial allotment of bids for each district was negotiated. The NDT Committee sought a way to recognize teams achieving outstanding records throughout the season, and the first-round at-large bids were invented to begin operation in 1971. Initially the Committee proposed a list of 10 major tournaments during the year, the winner of which would get an automatic bid to the NDT; since a team might win more than one tournament, the second place would earn a bid if the winner had already received one. With some modification, this system worked for two years (although there were disagreements over which constituted the top ten tournaments for a particular year), but by 1973 the Committee had changed to the current system--having 16 bids awarded on the basis of a team's full season record.

The early 1970s also saw a shift in tournament format. Occasionally a negative team would want to know something about an affirmative plan in the hope of linking a particular disadvantage. The practice was for the first negative to outline a series of questions to be answered in the second affirmative. During the early 1970s there was some movement to adopt a format which allowed direct questioning of each speaker, and the cross-exam format was adopted for the 1976 NDT; while some invitational tournaments initially kept the old format, it was not long before cross examination debate became dominant.

The Later Years: 1975-1997

Merwyn Hayes of Wake Forest directed the NDT in 1973 and 1974. After his surprise resignation in the fall of 1974, a member of his tab room staff, Mike Hazen of Wake Forest was chosen to direct the NDT, a post he held until 1983. The tournament remained the same size (62 teams; it had been increased from 46 teams in 1973), and used the same method of pairing (high-high power match in odd number rounds; high-low within brackets for even numbered rounds). It also placed the same number of teams into the elimination rounds: 16.

David Zarefsky of Northwestern replaced Hazen as director, and ran the tournament from 1984 until 1989. The size of the tournament moved from 62 teams to 74 teams by 1988 and the elimination rounds expanded to include all teams with five wins and thirteen ballots. This was also the decade of the first experiment with computer tabulation, and it occurred at the 1988 tournament (Zarefsky interview). Gary Larson had developed a computer program for pairing and judge placement, but it was backed up in the traditional manner. In 1989 the experiment was tried again, but the computer program crashed early, and the tournament was gently removed from machine control.

Several changes took place in the early 1990s when the tournament was directed by Al Johnson. The tournament size was determined by a complex set of formulas, with the number of teams ranging from 68 to 78, the maximum allowed. Six schools could now have a third team qualify to enter the tournament.

The tournament began experimenting again with computer programs, this time with one developed by Rich Edwards of Baylor University (Edwards, Tab-Room-on-the-Mac). The NDT Committee made changes in pairing assumptions, with the number of high-high power matched rounds reduced from three to one.

The 1996 Golden Anniversary NDT brought more than one hundred alums to Wake Forest University where the Anniversary tournament was held. Alumni listened to rounds (with mixed reactions), visited with Former Senator and Presidential Candidate George McGovern, with the current debaters and with each other. Bill Southworth and Allan Loudon prepared an elaborate tournament booklet, featuring a great deal of the 50 year happenings of the NDT.

From 1988 on, participation in elimination rounds was limited to teams which had collected 5 wins and 13 ballots, which meant that typically one to three teams with 5 wins and fewer ballots were denied the chance to participate. For 1997, the NDT Committee changed the rules so that all teams with 5 wins regardless of ballot count could advance to the elimination rounds (up to a total of 32). Ironically, the 1997 NDT had the same number of elimination round teams as the 1996 tournament. This was also the first year that the NDT Committee experimented with e-mail for first and second round at-large submissions, with mixed results.

Two other "firsts" occurred at the 1997 NDT. This was the first year an electronic presentation of the pairings appeared as they were read by the Director (it was not so much an electronic marvel as the presence of efficient elves behind the matching board). Also, the Chancellor of Liberty University, Dr. Jerry Falwell, spent over an hour between power matched rounds in a discussion with NDT participants, answering questions and presenting his opinion on a variety of issues. It proved to be a spirited exchange.

The 51st NDT used the Rich Edwards' computer program on two computers, with one computer checking the other one. The topic debated was, "RESOLVED: That the United States Federal Government should increase regulations requiring industries to substantially decrease the domestic emission and/or production of environmental pollutants." The issue of global climate change was significant this year, producing multiple options, from enforceable permits to a tax on carbon proposed on costs of alleviating warming. In addition to these more traditional harm areas, teams debated case harms ranging from the introduction of bio-genetically engineered organisms to the sales of exotic pets through catalogs. In the final round of the 1997 NDT, the University of Georgia supported a shift to solar power to prevent global warming.

I am indebted to Paul Slappey, the NDT "almost official" photographer from the University of Iowa for many of the pictures included in this volume. I would also like to thank Josh Zive and Rebecca Ford of the University of Kansas for their help in picture identification, description of the topic, and in the preparation and design of this book.

1997 TOP SPEAKERS

The First Place Speaker Awards went to Corey Rayburn of the University of Iowa, being presented here by Board of Trustees Chair John Gossett. These awards include the Wayne Brockriede First Place Watch, donated by Robert Feldhake (1976 Top Speaker) and the Travelling Tiffany Bowl naming the NDT's Top Speakers.

Second Speaker at the 1997 NDT, also receiving a watch, was Scott Hessell of the University of Michigan. Hessell was also the Fourth Speaker at 1996 NDT.

Third Speaker was Brian Prestes of Wake Forest University. Fourth Speaker was Dan Fitzmeier of Emory University, being presented his trophy by Arnie Madsen, NDT Committee Chair; and Fifth Speaker was Baylor's Kelly Dunbar.

The 1997 Final Round

Winning debaters from Wake Forest University Daveed Gartenstein-Ross (Ashland, OR) & Brian Prestes (Worcester, MA) are pictured with the NDT Championship Sigrid Larmon Trophy as winner of the 51st National Debate Tournament. They also received the Permanent First Place Trophy and finalist watches.

The final round of the 1997 NDT took place between Wake Forest University (Daveed Gartenstein-Ross & Brian Prestes) and the University of Georgia (Paul Barsness & Daniel Davis). Georgia moved into the final round by being advanced over another Georgia team (Michael Cates & Christopher McIntosh) in the semis; Wake Forest earned their position with a 3-2 decision over the University of Michigan (Scott Hessel & Corey Stoughton) in the semi-final round. In the finals, Georgia was affirmative and Wake Forest negative. Five judges were chosen to observe the fray: Rod Phares of the University of Kansas, Jeff Parcher of Georgetown University, Bill Trapani of the University of Iowa, and two Baylor Bears--Ryan Galloway and John Brusckke. The decision of the judges was 4-1 for the negative team, Wake Forest, with Trapani dissenting.

The Second Place team of Paul Barsness (Norcross, Ga) and Daniel Davis (Snellville, GA) of the University of Georgia are holding the Walker Permanent trophy for the runner-up NDT team. They also received individual finalist watches and a permanent Second Place trophy.

1997 First Round At Large Team

The University of Michigan team of Scott Hessel and Corey Stoughton (Birmingham, MI) is presented the Rex Copeland Memorial Trophy for the top team in the first round at-large balloting by NDT Board Member Tim Hynes. The award, named for the Samford University debater who was killed in 1990, was donated by his parents.

New Awards

A Championship Coaching Award was instituted in 1995, called the Ovid R. Davis/West Georgia College Award. NDT Director Donn Parson presents the watch to Wake Forest coach Ross Smith.

Continuing the Queue

The Board of Trustees announced formation of the Lucy Keele Award in 1996. It was to honor her more than 20 years on the Board and Committee. The 1997 recipient was NDT host Brett O'Donnell being applauded here by his Chancellor Jerry Falwell.

Rex Copeland Award,

1990 - 1997

On September 21, 1989, the life of Rex Copeland was brought to a sudden and tragic close. With his death, Samford University lost an outstanding student, and the forensic community lost an excellent debater and friend.

In recognition of Rex's professional and personal qualities, Samford University together with his parents endowed a permanent award in his name. The Rex Copeland Memorial Award is presented annually to the collegiate debate team ranked "Number One" in the First Round, At-Large team selections.

This award recognizes the few who achieve one of the highest honors in the debate community.
