The National Debate Tournament

THE YEARS AT WEST POINT

In 1947, it was unusual to find debate teams crossing the country or meeting a rival team more than once or twice. Most debate tournaments were local or regional in nature. There was no place where top teams from across the country could compete. The West Point National Intercollegiate Tournament was organized and conducted by the United States Military Academy to provide such an experience—where top teams from across the nation could meet. The tournament rules were determined by West Point Administration in consultation with such debate coaches as A. Craig Baird of the University of Iowa, G.M. Musgrave of Des Moines, Alan Nichols of USC, E.R. Nichols of the University of Redlands, and Joseph O'Brien of Pennsylvania State University.

Seven regions were set up to identify top teams, and select 29 colleges to participate in five seeding rounds and four elims over a three-day period. Some of the features of the tournament stipulated that no school would meet a school within 500 miles of itself during the seeding rounds and that no coach would judge a school from his or her own district. Several traditions started at West Point remain in practice today: the "big board," oral announcement of pairings, and three judges in each preliminary round.

West Point administered the tournament for the first twenty years of its history. Initially there were no fees; housing and meals were provided by the Academy. For the first few years coaches stayed in the homes of Academy officers. All entertainment facilities on the base were free, except for the Post Theatre, which charged 15¢ a movie (Debaters Magazine, 1947). During these years the tournament was expanded from 29 to 38 teams. After a series of tab room errors, a committee of coaches was set up to "review" the results of the prelims before elim rounds began (Parson, "The NDT at Fifty").

THE AMERICAN FORENSIC ASSOCIATION TAKES OVER

The Early Years: 1967-1974

In 1966 West Point Commandant William Westmoreland informed George Ziegelmueller, then President of the American Forensic Association, that the Academy would no longer host the tournament. The reason cited was "budget constraints," and the decision came as a complete surprise to the forensic community. Four coaches, Annabel Hagood of Alabama, Herb James of Dartmouth, William Reynolds of Georgetown and Ziegelmueller of Wayne State formed an interim transition committee, with Hagood and James focusing on the problem of finance.

The early years of the AFA sponsored tournament (1967-1975) were marked by coaches planning, setting guidelines and eligibility rules, searching for a director as well as a tournament site; they were years of change. The first chair of what became the National Debate Tournament Committee was Annabel Hagood, and the first NDT Director, Stan Rives. The initial committee assumption was that it would pick a different director for each year. Following Rives as director were Richard Rieke in 1968 at Brooklyn College, Roger Hufford in 1969 at Northern Illinois, Dave Matheny in 1970 at the University of Houston, and John Lehman in 1971 at Macalester College and again in 1972 at the University of Utah. This period was marked by the development of coaches' responsibility for all aspects of the tournament, which was renamed The National Debate Tournament. Beginning in 1970, it was possible for a school to have two of its teams qualify to the NDT; this occurred after much heated debate (and a fear that some school would "close-out" the NDT which apparently would constitute an embarrassment).

Districts were reconstituted but remained eight in number until a new district (District IX) representing the Rocky Mountain States was added, and an initial allotment of bids for each district was negotiated. The NDT Committee sought a way to recognize teams achieving outstanding records throughout the season, and the first-round at-large bids were invented to begin operation in 1971. Initially the Committee proposed a list of 10 major tournaments during the year, the winner of which would get an automatic bid to the NDT; since a team might win more than one tournament, the second place would earn a bid if the winner had already received one. With some modification, this system worked for two years (although there were disagreements over which constituted the top ten tournaments for a particular year), but by 1973 the Committee had changed to the current system—having 16 bids awarded on the basis of a team's full season record.

The early 1970s also saw a shift in tournament format. Occasionally a negative team would want to know something about an affirmative plan in the hope of linking a particular disadvantage. The practice was for the first negative to outline a series of questions to be answered in the second affirmative. During the early 1970s there was some movement to adopt a format which allowed direct questioning of each speaker, and the cross-exam format was adopted for the 1976 NDT; while some invitational tournaments initially kept the old format, it was not long before cross examination debate became dominant.

The Later Years: 1975-2001

Merwyn Hayes of Wake Forest directed the NDT in 1973 and 1974. After his surprise resignation in the fall of 1974, a member of his tab room staff, Mike Hazen of Wake Forest was chosen to direct the NDT, a post he held until 1983. The tournament remained the same size (62 teams; it had been increased from 46 teams in 1973), and used the same method of pairing (high-high power match in odd number rounds; high-low within brackets for even numbered rounds). It also placed the same number of teams into the elimination rounds: 16.

David Zarefsky of Northwestern replaced Hazen as director, and ran the tournament from 1984 until 1989. The size of the tournament moved from 62 teams to 74 teams by 1988 and the elimination rounds expanded to include all teams with five wins and thirteen ballots. This was also the decade of the first experiment with computer tabulation, and it occurred at the 1988 tournament (Zarefsky interview). Gary Larson had developed a computer program for pairing and judge placement, but it was backed up in the traditional manner. In 1989 the experiment was tried again, but the computer program crashed early, and the tournament was gently removed from machine control.

Several changes took place in the early 1990s when the tournament was directed by Al Johnson. The tournament size was determined by a complex set of formulas, with the number of teams ranging from 68 to 78, the maximum allowed. Six schools could now have a third team qualify to enter the tournament. The tournament began experimenting again with computer programs, this time with one developed by Rich Edwards of Baylor University (Edwards, Tab-Room-on-the-Mac). The NDT Committee made changes in pairing assumptions, with the number of high-high power matched rounds reduced from three to one.

The 1996 Golden Anniversary NDT brought more than one hundred alums to Wake Forest University where the Anniversary tournament was held. Alumni listened to rounds (with mixed reactions), visited with Former Senator and Presidential Candidate George McGovern, with the current debaters and with each other. Bill Southworth and Allan Loudon prepared an elaborate tournament booklet, featuring a great deal of the 50 year happenings of the NDT.

From 1988 on, participation in elimination rounds was limited to teams which had collected 5 wins and 13 ballots, which meant that typically one to three teams with 5 wins and fewer ballots were denied the chance to participate. From 1997 on, the NDT Committee changed the rules so that all teams with 5 wins regardless of ballot count could advance to the elimination rounds (up to a total of 32).

This was also the first year that the NDT Committee experimented with e-mail for first and second round at-large submissions, with mixed results. The 1998-99 NDT Committee voted to allow third teams from more than six schools to qualify if the allocation of second round at large bids was not filled by qualified teams. For the 1999 and 2000 NDT, that number of third teams remained at six; the tournament was at its maximum: 78 teams.

The 2002 Lucy Keele Award was presented to Pat Ganer, former member of the NDT Board of Trustees and its tab room. She also served as President of the American Forensic Association. The George Ziegelmueller Awards went to Karla Leeper, Debate Director at Baylor and NDT Host, shown on p.14 with George Ziegelmueller, and to Herb James, long-time debate coach at Dartmouth College and member of the NDT Committee and Board of Trustees.

The 2001-2002 debate resolution was "Resolved: That the United States Federal Government should substantially increase federal control throughout Indian Country in one or more of the following areas: child welfare, criminal justice, employment, environmental protection, gaming, resource management, taxation." The Indian Country topic produced a wide range of interesting and detailed debates. Common affirmative cases focused on subjects as diverse as the placement of foster children, the extraction of natural resources, waste disposal, gaming regulations, and research conducted in Indian Countries. Negative positions explored issues including federal control (versus state control or Indian self determination), international precedents, political consequences, and even our representation of Indians. In the final round, Northwestern ran a new case which extended denied states' taxation authority over natural gas extraction in Indian Country in order to end dual taxation and fuel industry investment to reduce dependence on foreign oil. Kentucky ran a negative strategy which included a state counterplan and a Bush disadvantage discussing Iraq. The judges voted for the affirmative on a 4 to 1 decision.

I am indebted to John Fritch, tournament host for work on the pictures, to Eric Morris of the University of Kansas for commentary on the topic and final round, and to Suzanne Grachek, for technical expertise, book creation and composition.

National Debate Tournament 2002

Southwest Missouri State University

March 23-March 26, 2002

2002 Top Speakers

The First Place Speaker Awards went to Alex Berger of Dartmouth College with 633 points. These awards include the Wayne Brockriede First Place Watch, donated by Robert Feldhake (1976 Top Speaker) and the Traveling Tiffany Bowl naming the NDT's Top Speakers. Berger was the 5th Speaker in 2001.

Second Speaker at the 2002 NDT, and also receiving a watch, was Adriana Midence (left) of the University of Michigan.

An absolute tie for Third Speaker between Calum Matheson of Michigan State (right) and John Rains of Emory was broken by a coin flip.

Fifth Speaker was Russ Hubbard of the University of Kentucky.

The 2002 Final Round

Winning debaters from Northwestern University are Jacob Foster and Jonathan Paul. They received the First Place Sigrid Larmon Traveling Trophy. As NDT champions they also received a Permanent First Place trophy and finalist watches. Scott Deatherage was presented a watch as coach of the winning team.

The final round of the 2002 NDT took place between Northwestern University (Jacob Foster & Jonathan Paul) and the University of Kentucky (Russ Hubbard & Mike Tetzlaff). Kentucky moved into the final round by defeating Michigan State (Greta Stahl & David Strauss) 4-1 in the semis; Northwestern earned the finals with a 4-1 decision over West Georgia University (Rashad Evans & Sarah Holbrook) in the semi-final round. In the finals, Northwestern was affirmative and Kentucky negative. Five judges were chosen to observe the fray: Hajir Ardebili of Berkeley, David Heidt of Emory, Mike Hester of West Georgia University, Ryan Galloway of the University of Georgia, and Randy Luskey of Berkeley. On a 4-1 decision, with Hester dissenting, the debate was awarded to Northwestern University. Unfortunately, there are no existent pictures of the finalist teams with their trophies and watches.

The Second Place team of Russ Hubbard and Mike Tetzlaff of the University of Kentucky was awarded the Walker Traveling Trophy as the runner-up NDT team. They also received individual finalist watches and a permanent Second Place trophy.

First Round At Large Awards

Winner of the Rex Copeland Memorial Trophy was the Dartmouth College team of Ben Thorpe and Alex Berger. The award is presented to the top team in the first round at large balloting. Named for the Samford debater who was killed in 1990, the award was donated by his parents.

Second ranked was the Northwestern team of Jacob Foster and Jonathan Paul.

Third ranked was the Michigan State University team of Austin Carson and Calum Matheson.

Fourth ranked was the Berkeley team of Dan Shalmon and Stacy Nathan.

Fifth ranked was the Whitman College team of Charles Olney and Thad Blank.

COACHING AWARDS 2002

The Ovid Davis Award

This award, named in honor of Ovid Raymond Davis, a 1935 graduate of West Georgia College (now the State University of West Georgia), is presented to the coach of the team that wins the National Debate Tournament. Ovid Davis spent his entire professional career with the Coca Cola Company, and he retired in 1982 as vice president for Public Affairs.

Rex Copeland Award, 1990-2002

On September 21, 1989, the life of Rex Copeland was brought to a sudden and tragic close. With his death, Samford University lost an outstanding student, and the forensic community lost an excellent debater and friend.

In recognition of Rex's professional and personal qualities, Samford together with his parents endowed a permanent award in his name. The Rex Copeland Memorial Award is presented annually to the collegiate debate team ranked "Number One" in the First Round, At-Large team selections.

This award recognizes the few who achieve one of the highest honors in the debate community.
