*Wake Forest had experimented with judges being able to give .5's in their speaker points, it caught on. During the first two rounds of the NDT many judges were giving .5's. Al Johnson announced he would not accept them and rounded DOWN all ballots with .5's. There were a lot of such "rounding outs" in the first two rounds!

*NOTE: Starting this year, speaker awards were assigned by Z-Score—a metric which normalizes points by comparing the assigned value of a given round against the standard deviation of a judge’s average points. Since this measure already works to minimize the effects of outlier results, the tournament no longer dropped high-low results.
